Special to The Times
Albany, New York, March 29—Fire this morning damaged the handsome state capitol to the extent of from five to eight million dollars and it was with difficulty that the entire interior of the marble structure did not fall prey to the flames.
The fire was caused by a defective electric wire and spread rapidly through the State Library on the first floor of the building, destroying priceless historical records. The handsome furnishings in many parts of the building were consumed and others damaged beyond repair.
No insurance was carried and the loss is total.
The state capitol was erected and furnished at a cost of $27,000,000.00. It is known as the most handsome state capitol in the United States.

RAILROAD TIE-UP
There was trouble on the East Berlin Branch Railway Tuesday morning, which impaired the entire system and there were no trains in operation until late in the day.
The reliable engine with its triple combination smoking, passenger and baggage car left East Berlin on schedule time in the morning headed for the Junction. When steaming through the fields near the Carlisle pike crossing, the drivers lost their animation and the train came to a standstill. There was trouble in the steam chest, which called for treatment in a roundhouse hospital.
The passengers were given their chance of accepting "pike-passes" to Hanover five miles distant by the air line, or transfer to Hendrix the nearest station on the Western Maryland about two miles away.
Residents along the "pike," observing a string of pedestrians with baggage in hand, thought a theatrical troupe which might have been stranded at New Oxford.

SIMILARITY OF DATES

CLAYBAUGH GOES TO PENITENTIARY

Pleads Guilty to Charge of Larceny of Chickens and Sentence of from One to Three Years is Imposed. Started at Once.

J. M. Claybaugh pleaded guilty at a session of Court held Tuesday to the larceny of chickens of Mrs. R. Leo Tipton, East Middle street, several weeks ago and was sentenced to go to an imprisonment of not less than one or more than three years in the Eastern Penitentiary. He was taken to the institution this morning by Deputy Sheriff George Fissel.

It will be remembered that Claybaugh's guilt was largely established by the testimony of Harry Thompson who claimed in the hearing before Squire Harnish that Claybaugh had compelled him to go along on the chicken stealing expedition. The arrest was made on the day following the theft.

Edward A. Weaver, Esq., asked for clemency for the prisoner and Judge Swope in pronouncing sentence called Claybaugh's attention to the fact that he was but 38 years of age and that, upon completing his term, he would still be in the very prime of life and have ample opportunity to make a good and respected citizen. He is a married man with four children.

Claybaugh recently completed a term in the Eastern Penitentiary for forgery. While awaiting trial in the local jail he tried to escape by jumping from the wall but broke his leg in the attempt and was found several hundred yards away in the old Reformed church cemetery the following morning after having been there all night in great pain.

ARRESTED ON THREE CHARGES

Fabian Krise, of Oxford Township, Charged with False Pretense and Forgery, Brought to County Jail by Constable Hensel.

Constable William E. Hensel, of New Oxford, brought to the Adams County jail on Tuesday evening Fabian E. Krise charged with several offenses, one of which is forgery and another obtaining a sleigh under false pretense. Krise, who is about 33 years of age and a resident of Oxford Township, was arrested in York following information furnished to the police of that city by Constable Hensel. The New Oxford official then got the man and brought him here, turning him over to Sheriff Fissel.

One indictment charges that Krise had Harry Fleschman cash a check on the Hanover Saving Fund Society purporting to have been given by A. A. Rudisill. The signature is an alleged forgery. A second indictment charges that he had W. C. Herman cash a check on the Hanover Saving Fund Society signed by himself. Krise, when there were no funds to meet the same. Each check was for $4.50.

The charge of obtaining a sleigh under false pretense was preferred by W. A. Diehl who claims that Krise got a sleigh from him in December promising that he would pay for it about March first when he would sell some cattle which he and his father, Henry Krise, were jointly fattening. It is claimed that the younger Krise had no interest in the cattle and that payment for the sleigh was not made at the time indicated.

EAST BERLIN

East Berlin, March 29—The Spring Grove Cornet Band gave a fine concert on our streets on Saturday evening after which they gave a fine minstrel show in the Red Men's Hall. The hall was crowded and all who were present say that it was excellent. They also gave a dance in Keen's dancing hall.

There will be preaching in the Evangelical church on Sunday at 2.30 p. m.

FREIGHT CARS DAMAGED

Two freight cars standing on a switch south of the Western Maryland depot at Porters were unroofed Monday evening during the storm. The roof of one of the cars was carried one hundred feet away from the tracks, while the other roof landed less than twenty five feet away. A number of slabs blown from the roof of Dr. L. H. Sterner's dwelling alighted on his office building, smashing holes in the roof. Three telegraph poles were blown down at the edge of the place on the Baltimore division of the Western Maryland, causing telegraphic service to be put out of commission. The damage was repaired Tuesday morning by railroad linemen.

TWO MORE YEARS FOR EDDIE PLANK

Local Pitcher with Philadelphia Athletics is Reported to have Said that Two Seasons would Close his Career.

The year 1912 will witness the retirement of Eddie Plank from baseball, says a newspaper dispatch. At the close of the season two years hence the great southpaw who has been a bulwark of strength for the Athletics since the American league invaded Philadelphia, will go back to the farm and the simple life, according to the story printed which says:
This is the word of the big left hander from Gettysburg himself. On the way to the grounds at Savannah, Ga., one day last week he and Jack Combs were talking about the strain on a ball palyer. Ed agreed that each season with its worry, its strain, its physical wear and its mental worry, took two years out of the life of every player each season.

"Two more years," said Eddie—this year and next—"and back to the farm to stay there the rest of my life. I shall quit the game in 1912 and all that I ask is that I have two more good years."

"I have earned this long rest. In 1912 I will have been a dozen years in the game as a pitcher. I started with Connie Mack and I want to quit with him."

"Most of those fellows who sit in the bleachers and roar at you when you have a bad day think that all you have to do is travel around the country and work a couple of hours a day. I want to tell them that there is more work, actual work, in twirling one game of baseball than there is in two days' work on the farm."

"I get up at sunrise and work until sundown in the country and then sleep like a baby. But let me pitch a game of ball and my arm aches. I'm sore all over and cannot sleep for pain. Two years more for me and then I'm through. If I haven't enough to live on then I never will have if I stick in baseball twice as long."

"Goodby baseball for Eddie in 1912."

He was born in Gettysburg and lived here until 1881 when he moved to Washington. He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flaharty, of Gettysburg; his wife and two children, Louis and Milton, of Washington. A brother and a sister, George Flaharty and Mrs. Mary McKeever, of Washington, also survive.

The body will arrive at 10.08 Thursday morning and will be taken to the Reformed church from where the funeral will be held.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES

The bridge over Possum Creek at Aspers suddenly gave way Monday afternoon just after a runaway team passed over it. The team was one driven by a Mr. Tatnall and the horse had taken fright and was running full speed over the structure. The bridge started to give way and horse leaped just in time to pull the vehicle from the dropping structure to safety. Workmen are now constructing a foot bridge across the creek as there is no other way to get across, except by fording.

565 POUNDS

Register and Recorder Jacob Apple recalls the death of a county resident who weighed more than Mrs. Ida Milberry whose death was noted in these columns yesterday. Mr. Apple was teaching school in Latimore township in 1876 and had as one of his pupils David Harman, 19 years of age, whose weight was 516 pounds. The boy was a little over six feet tall. He died two years later and his weight at that time was 565 pounds.

Mr. Hal Pool will be at the Globe Hotel, Saturday, April 1st and wishes to buy 40 head of horses and mules

The funeral of Mrs. J. M. Linn was largely attended, her four sons acting as pall bearers. When the funeral procession was on the way to Gettysburg just below Cashtown one of the first teams made a sudden stop causing many carriage tops to be damaged by the horses following. Mr. Zentz of Thurmont, Maryland, was the most unfortunate, having had the wheels of his carriage smashed to kindling. A neighbor's carriage was procured for the unfortunate people and the funeral then proceeded.

SEES DRAMA AND ENDS LIFE

Heroine's Lack of Mother's Guidance Portrayed Her Own Life.

Cincinnati, O., March 29.—Because a melodrama, in which the heroine lacked the guidance of mother love, portrayed almost exactly as her own life, Mrs. Richard Muir, twenty-one years old, committed suicide.

Muir is employed in the evenings and the woman, therefore, went to the theater alone. When she returned to her home she was greatly depressed.

"I have just seen a sad show," she told Muir. "I never knew what it was to be without a mother until now. Goodby."

Grasping a bottle of carbolic acid, she drained it before Muir could spring across the room to her side. She was unconscious when aid came and died in an ambulance.

SPAIN AGAINST VATICAN

Madrid, March 29.—The cabinet unanimously approved the associations bill, which the government is determined to introduce in the cortes before April 6.

This Premier Canalejas refused.

New York, March 29.—Joseph B. Reichmann, former president of the defunct Carnegie Trust company, was indicted by the grand jury, charged with having knowingly concurred in making a false statement last fall as to the condition of the institution.

Reichmann returned from Dayton, O., only last Saturday, so crippled with paralysis that it was difficult for him to appear in court to plead to the indictment. His plea was "not guilty," entered with leave to withdraw, and although the charge against him is only a misdemeanor, bail was fixed at $10,000. It was furnished by a surety company.

The indictment is the second one against an official of the Carnegie Trust company, William J. Cummins, the directing head and promoter, having been indicted last week three times, charged with larcenies of large sums by note transactions.

Other indictments are expected and more than 100 witnesses are yet to be examined.

STORM WRECKED MANY HOUSES

Hundreds of People Rendered Homeless by Tornado.

SMALL FORTUNES ARE LOST

Scores of Mill Workers in Philadelphia Had Narrow Escapes From Death When Factory Was Wrecked.

Philadelphia, March 29.—Shattered beyond hope of repair by the fury of the tornado of Monday night, hundreds of homes in the northeastern section of the city stand desolate.

Men, women and children, still stunned by the suddenness of the devastation of what had been theirs, looked on quietly while the debris was being cleared from their dwellings, wondering where they would spend the night and prayed that something might be saved from the mass of wreckage. The loss will amount to several hundred thousand dollars.

More than one family had its all wiped out by the storm. Savings of years were buried beneath the caved-in roofs. Daylight more than realized the worst expectations of those who had endeavored to trace the path of the gale, for in a narrow tract, scarcely more than 100 yards wide at the widest part, yet miles in length, and stretching from Allegheny avenue clear to Torresdale, scarce a block could be found that had not at least one roof tossed into the street or the neighboring meadow, or one house with walls swept away, leaving bare the interior.

An Awful Twenty Minutes.

Daylight brought home the real terror and caused the wonder to increase that there had been but one death and not more than a score of injuries totalled during the frightful twenty minutes in which homes crashed about the ears of their owners, mills were damaged, streets blocked, cars derailed, trees torn up, and tin roofs, bricks and mortar sent sailing through the night.

Probably the most remarkable escape was that of 200 operatives, mostly women, who were on the point of leaving their work in the mill of John Blood & Brother. It was here that two immense chimneys were torn from the roof, a water tank demolished, a roof crushed in upon the looms and more than 500 square feet of wall, near and twenty inches in thickness, blown into the street.

At this mill there was no work. The operatives crowded about in the street below and watched the gangs of workmen tearing away the wreckage and thanked providence that they had not been swept into the street along with the wall. At this factory there was but one person hurt.

Dozens of Homes Wrecked.

Fronting the Blood mill there is a clearing of perhaps 300 yards in length. Beyond this Weikle and Janney streets begin. At the corners of these dozens of homes were wrecked. In its freakishness the storm completely ignored a wooden shanty at the corner of Weikle street and caved in three brick and stone residences. This was after it had pierced tanks of the Atlantic Refining company and flooded the surrounding meadows with oil.

Not twenty feet distant from these tanks are huge piles of empty barrels which the wind could have carried, as it did fences for hundreds of yards. It left them untouched.

The storm worked like a churn. Its most serious damages were at intervals. It traveled high, dove to the housetops and the ground, jumped into the clouds, swept along without interfering with the works of men's hands for considerable spaces, then dove again and went on with its wrecking.

Boston Sewer Runs Red.

Boston, March 29.—The Hanover street sewer ran red for an hour. No blood was shed, however. The scarlet flow came from 1500 gallons of tomato ketchup, emptied from twenty-nine large barrels into a manhole. The ketchup was seized by United States deputy marshals and condemned as unfit for food.

FIGHTING RECIPROCITY

Head of Farmers' Organization Says Measure Killed Taft Politically.

Washington, March 29.—The farmers' national organizations are gathering in Washington to war on President Taft's recommendations for Canadian reciprocity.

Aaron Jones, of South Bend, Ind., the moving spirit back of the National Grange, declares that President Taft has made himself so unpopular because of the advocacy of the reciprocity pact that under no circumstances could he be re-elected.

"He will lose Indiana by 100,000 and fall short of carrying even his own state of Ohio by nearly or quite as large a plurality adverse to him," declared Jones.

Phillips, an administrator to be appointed for the estate in Colorado.

Phillips, who is a distant relative of Wyman, claims $103,400 is due him from the estate. He demanded that his claim be settled before the estate is turned over to Princeton.

"WHITE MAN'S HOPE" KNOCKS OUT SCHRECK

Carl Morris Won Easily in the Sixth Round.

Sapulpa, Okla., March 29.—Carl Morris, of Oklahoma, called the heavy weight pugilistic hope of the white race, made good his name in the prize ring here by knocking out Mike Schreck, of Pittsburgh, Pa., in the sixth round of what was to have been a fifteen round bout. A right to the jaw did the work.

It was Morris' fight from the start to the finish, one minute and two seconds after beginning of the sixth round when Schreck fell heavily and took the count.

During the entire fight Schreck struck Morris but five clean blows, none of which were hard enough to cause Carl much discomfort. On the other hand Oklahoma's young fighter chased and struck the veteran as he pleased.

About 1500 of the 12,000 spectators were women, mostly from Sapulpa and Oklahoma City. Morris' wife was greeted with cheers as she entered the arena and occupied a box where she had a good view.

PAT

By CAROL H. PIERCE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I was tramping in Switzerland. I set out one morning from Vevay on the road to Geneva. I was walking along enjoying the beautiful prospect about me—Lake Leman and white Alpine peaks in the distance—when ahead of me I saw a figure topped by a conical hat, a greenish coat and knee breeches. Over his shoulder he carried a staff, to an end of which was slung a bandanna handkerchief, evidently containing the wayfarer's luggage. "Upon my word," I said to myself, "if there isn't a son of the Emerald Isle tramping along here in Switzerland!"

There is a kinship among those who speak the same language that comes out when they meet in foreign lands. It was this feeling that induced me to increase my pace till I reached the man. When I did so he turned toward me a good natured face and on seeing that I was amused at his appearance said jauntily:

"The top of the morning to you, sir."

"How are you, Pat?" I replied.

"And how did you know me name was Pat?" he asked.

"Oh, you green islanders are all of the Pat or Mike. I had an even chance of hitting your name."

"You're not English," he rejoined, "unless you're a colonist. I know that by your talk."

"I'm an American. But what the dickens are you tramping for here in Switzerland—looking for a chance to carry mortar to the top of some new building?"

"Where there's a fellow to do all the work?"

My reply to this was a smile. The man puzzled me. His brogue was not so broad as that of an Irish peasant.

And why an Irish peasant should be looking for a job in Switzerland I could not conceive.

Whether it was that I longed for the companionship of one who spoke a common language or because there was something very much alive with my fellow traveler I don't know, but I enjoyed his company so well that I was in no hurry to part with him.

Coming to a village, we sat down together at a table in the grounds of a hotel on the margin of the lake and ordered a luncheon. Pat talked glibly all the while, his chat sparkling with wit and humor, so that I was very agreeably entertained. I undertook to pay for his lunch as well as my own, but he wouldn't have it. I insisted that it was a low price for me to pay for having been so pleasantly cheered, but he said that he had, or thought he had, money enough to take him to Dublin, and as long as it lasted he would pay his own way.

The result of the meeting was that we traveled together to Geneva. There he named a cheap hotel he proposed to stop at, and I was so loath to part with him that I chose the same hostelry. He intended to set out on his walk the next day toward Dijon, thence to Paris, Calais and across the channel and over England to his home in Ireland. But the next day he was taken down with rheumatism in one of his legs and couldn't move.

He did not quit Geneva for two weeks. It was one of my stopping points and I kept him company, in other words took care of him, then succeeded in inducing him to permit me to purchase a ticket for him to Dublin. Indeed, there seemed to be no other way for him to get home but by train, for he couldn't walk and he hadn't sufficient money to ride. I told him that I would make a tour of Ireland before returning to America and would see him there. If he found it convenient to pay the loan then, well and good, if not I would not miss the amount. On parting with him I asked him to tell me what he was doing in Switzerland. He smiled that good natured smile of his and said that would be explained when I saw him in Ireland.

It was several months before I started on my Irish tour, and on reaching Dublin I posted a letter announcing my arrival to the address he had given me, a village not far from the city. The next afternoon a note from Pat was handed to me stating that he had had a relapse of his old trouble, rheumatism, and could not get out. Would I kindly come with the bearer? The bearer was a liveried servant.

I thought there must be some mistake, but said nothing. I went outside, where I found a carriage with the coachman in the same livery as the bearer of the note. I was put into the carriage and driven for an hour when we turned into a handsome place. As we neared the house I saw a gentleman sitting on the porch with one leg resting on a chair. On his face was a broad grin, evidently at the surprise plainly visible on mine, for he was none other than my fellow traveler, Pat.

He thus explained the case. He was a gentleman's son and like others of his kind went out into the world to fight for a living, since his father had lost his property by speculation. He had fancied to tramp as an Irish peasant; having heard of the death of a cousin which would give him an entailed estate, he was making his way homeward on foot when I met him.

He entertained me royally, and since he expressed a wish to tramp in America we arranged for a pedestrian tour in the Rocky mountains.

The next year he came over, and we visited many of our western scenic curiosities together, tramping much of the way.

MADERO PREDICTS PEACE IN MEXICO

It Will Come Inside of Month, Revolutionist Says.

DIAZ WILL SOON RESIGN

Declares He Will Hold Office Until Reforms Are Put in Force—Peace Conference Arranged.

San Antonio, Tex., March 29.—Francisco I. Madero, Sr., father of the provisional president of Mexico, arrived here with his son Gustavo, straight from New York, and he announced that by arrangements which had been concluded between himself and Jose Yves Limantour in New York definite measures of peace between the insurgents and the Diaz government in Mexico were in process of being formulated. He even allowed himself to prophesy that within thirty days there would be peace over the entire territory of Mexico and without the intervention of American troops. He also said that President Diaz would resign within a few months.

"There will be a peace conference held within the next few days, possibly in San Antonio, although it may be held in Mexico," he said. "I do not know yet who will be the representatives of the Mexican government."

Francisco Madero, Sr., Alfonso Madero and Gustavo Madero will be the representatives of the revolutionary party at this conference, it was said at the revolutionary junta.

This is a part of the program of conciliation that Francisco Madero outlined as the basis of the reconciliation between the revolutionists and the federal government.

"There will be no armistice between the Maderists in the field and the federal troops opposing them during the time that whatever negotiations now contemplated may be in the making."

"Under no conditions will the rebels lay down their arms. They will simply guarantee to disperse upon the conclusion of a final treaty, each man carrying his arms to his home."

"Peace will not become a fact unless two things are guaranteed:

"A free election and the incorporation in the national constitution of a law prohibiting the re-election of all government officers."

"Certain changes in the newly appointed cabinet, looking toward the inclusion therein of men who are known not to be allied with the old Diaz regime, must be one of the conditions established before the revolution shall come to an end."

Francisco Madero, Sr., said that President Diaz would probably continue to hold his office for a few months longer while some reforms agreed to by the new cabinet are being put in force.

In the meantime, said Senor Madero, the resignation of Vice President Corral will be received by the Mexican congress shortly after it meets next Saturday, he said, will leave Senor de la Barra, as minister of foreign affairs, next in line for the presidency, but Senor de la Barra and the Mexican congress will take steps to have another election for president held.

Senor Madero would not say who would be the candidate for the revolutionary party in this event, but he intimated that Senor Limantour, the minister of finance, would be a satisfactory candidate to all parties. The Mexican congress, said Senor Madero, would probably abolish the office of vice president, thus putting Corral out of the running.

The Maderos do not believe that Senor de la Barra will stop at San Antonio on his way down to Mexico City, although they admitted that it is possible. They assert that de la Barra had received no assurance that his train would not be molested on its way to the capital, but it is known that Senor Limantour had assurance of that nature, and in view of the present peace negotiations it is believed that Senor de la Barra must have assurance of a safe passage.

MADEROS BANKRUPTS

Mexican Court Declares Revolutionists Are Insolvent.

Monterey, Mex., March 29.—Francisco Madero, Sr., and his nephew, Gustavo A. Madero, were separately declared bankrupt in the civil court here on a petition filed by Carlos E. Charboneau, representing the Mexican Central railway and the Mexican National Construction company, who sue to recover alleged debts amounting to more than half a million pesos.

The total liabilities of the Maderos is not known, but the sum mentioned is the claim of the two companies named.

The court declared that all correspondence for the two Maderos to whatever place in the republic be retained and be given to the receiver. At the same time properties of the Maderos were embargoed. The decision of the judge created a great sensation in commercial and banking circles.

PLAN TO PROBE COAL COMBINE

Resolution in Legislature Calls For Investigation.

QUESTION OF FREIGHT RATES

Committee to Be Directed to Inquire Into Cost of Mining and Transporting Anthracite and Other High Prices.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 29.—A resolution introduced in the legislature provides for a sweeping investigation of the anthracite coal industry of Pennsylvania and to frame laws to reduce the price of coal.

As an indication that the proposed investigation will be thorough a committee is empowered to inquire into relations between mining and transportation companies and great banking houses, which are said to be closely affiliated with them, and which usually conduct their financial operations.

The resolution, which is understood to have the approval of the Republican leaders, gives the committee power especially to investigate freight rates, it being alleged that rates for anthracite are much higher than those for bituminous coal.

In the preamble it is said that the excessive cost of transporting and handling anthracite is due, in part at least, to "large fees and commissions paid by transportation companies to bankers to negotiate the sale of their securities and for loans of money."

And also to "excessive fees, commissions and other charges paid to brokers, commission agents, sales agents, factors and middlemen."

Scope of Inquiry.

The committee is directed to inquire particularly into the actual cost of mining and transporting anthracite and the proportion paid to labor.

This with a view to determine whether the transportation rates for hard coal are excessive as compared with rates charged for bituminous and other commodities for equal distances.

Also whether the cost of anthracite to the consumer is in any measure due to "unjustified fees and commissions paid by the transportation companies to private and other bankers who are in the directorate of or are closely affiliated with such transportation companies" for negotiation of securities.

The committee is also further to "inquire into the relation of private and other bankers, brokers, factors and agents who are in the directorate of the anthracite coal carrying companies to the mining and sale of an anthracite coal."

PROBING BIG COAL COMBINE

The investigation has been going on about six months, and the department is said to be in possession of facts which promise to lead to something tangible in the way of action.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y., Press Correspondent New York State Grange

IN CONNECTICUT.

Grange Work In the State In a Most Flourishing Condition.

This is owing somewhat to the fact that State Master Healey "Wastes So Much Time Visiting the Granges" Under His Jurisdiction.

A neighbor of State Master L. H. Healey of Connecticut is reported to have said that "Mr. Healey is one of our best farmers, and I don't see how he can waste so much time visiting granges." From the enthusiastic manner in which Mr. Healey sets about his grange work and the persistence which he manifests in following it up we rightly infer that he is simply carrying into the grange field the same systematic methods as prevail in his farm work. He is an intensive farmer, owning but eighty acres of land, but he makes those acres return as great a profit as some men realize from twice that number.

It is greatly to his credit that he was able to report at the state grange meeting in January a membership of 15,000—not so small for the area of the Nutmeg State. He attributes much of the success of the grange in that state to the work of the press, and the only reason it does not do more, he says, is because we do not give it the opportunity.

The Connecticut state grange is in a most flourishing condition. It has a good balance of funds in the treasury, and it is working in harmony with all agricultural activities of the state.

The committee on resolutions at the recent meeting reported favorably on the proposition to request the national grange to publish in its proceedings the amount of money received from each state grange; also that an itemized account of the money received from each subordinate grange should be included in the annual report of the state grange.

Past Master Hale presented a resolution, which was adopted, providing that $200 be given to the Postal Progress league for the advancement of the parcels post agitation and that $5,000 be placed at the disposal of the executive committee to use for the inauguration of the parcels post. It was further voted that the state master be made a trustee of the Connecticut Agricultural college. The grange approved of the restoration of the two years' course in the Agricultural college. The committee on public health favored a proposition that all cattle imported into the state should be accompanied by a certificate showing them to have been tested by the tuberculin test within sixty days and found free from tuberculosis. The question provoked considerable discussion, but the resolution prevailed. The proposition to allow Pomona and subordinate granges to nominate officers was defeated. Favorable action was taken for agricultural education in the high schools.

In connection with the state grange work there is a flourishing Patrons' Fire Insurance company as well as a Patrons' Exchange, which is proving a money saver for its membership.

NEW JERSEY GRANGE.

In Annual Session at Atlantic City For Two Days.

The total membership of the Order in the state is said to have grown in ten years from 2,000 to 18,000, the number of granges from 50 to 132 and payments to the national grange from $80 to $800.

The state master has called attention to the very unsatisfactory condition of the highway matter in New Jersey, due largely to "the fact that, while in all states besides New Jersey automobile touring by residents is the rule and by nonresidents the exception, the reverse is true in New Jersey. In New Jersey there are more nonresident cars than resident cars. Besides this, there are perhaps nine for one of road in New Jersey from fifteen to twenty times as many automobiles running as there are in any other states. This is due to the fact that in New Jersey, where there are less than 8,000 square miles of territory, there is practically a population of 9,000,000 people whose automobiles are using its roads, while its resident population is less than 2,500,000." A plea for postal reform was added, including the eminently sensible suggestion that congress should "withdraw free postage from all departments of the government and provide in lieu thereof that postal services of each department be met by specific appropriations."

The sixth degree was conferred on about sixty candidates at the state grange meeting.

Senator G. W. F. Gaunt was elected master, J. M. Woolman overseer, D. H. Aghans lecturer, F. O. Ware steward, John T. Cox of Whitehouse Station secretary and Charles Collins treasurer.

Reile's Millinery Store, 13 and 15 Chambersburg street, Gettysburg, Pa.

In a very short time there will be thousands of dwellers in central and eastern states making home seeking tours through the west. As a safeguard in purchasing the writer would suggest that each reader of these notes who contemplates buying land in the section mentioned take plenty of time to inquire into the kind of soil found on his contemplated purchase, its depth, whether spotted or not, and also whether as a matter of fact it will produce in a satisfactory way the crops which the man selling it claims it will. If these simple precautions are heeded a lot of grief and disappointment will be saved.

As showing the important part which the gasoline tractor is playing on many a northwestern grain farm, the experience of a farmer near Beach, N. D., is interesting. He had 2,000 acres of virgin prairie to put in for the purpose of buying two twenty-two-horse-power tractors, together with the plows and other machinery necessary to put the soil in shape for a crop. These engines plowed, disked and seeded the 2,000 acres, and the land was sown to flax. In the fall the crop of 32,000 bushels was harvested, thrashed and hauled to market with these tractors and brought $48,000. The same season 1,000 acres of other land were broken, and next year 3,000 acres will be cropped.

Notwithstanding the fact that Illinois and Iowa land is supposed to be richer and more fertile than land in New York, some interesting facts have been noticed in reference to the crop production in the three states. On the basis of figures compiled in 1905 it was found that the average value of land in New York was $47.17 per acre, in Illinois $74.32 per acre and in Iowa $67.97 per acre. Notwithstanding this average valuation of land, the crop return per acre in New York for the ten years prior to 1905 was $19.42, in Illinois $16.70 and in Iowa $13.96. The average land values as well as crop returns for the past five years would doubtless show a variation from the above figures, but it is quite likely that the ratio would be about the same. There is something in the figures given worth thinking about.

A farmer, we read of the other day will probably have to have several toes amputated as a result of walking into two red-hot custard pies which his wife had left on the floor in an adjoining room, whither he walked in his stocking feet. He will carry a light next time, and the wife will cool her pastry in a more secure place.

PEACH YELLOWS.

Not Much Known About Cause and Treatment of This Orchard Trouble. Little is known about the cause of the peach tree affection known as the yellows. Unlike other diseases common to fruit trees, it does not seem to be an organism, or, rather, not one that can be discovered with the modern high power microscope. Not being able to locate the origin of the trouble, no effective treatment has as yet been discovered. It is claimed by those who have done some experimenting with the disease that a fair percentage of the trees will

PEACH TREE TWIGS.

(Twigs Nos. 1 and 2 were cut from a normal tree. Twigs Nos. 3 and 4 were cut from a tree which showed early symptoms of yellows the previous fall. Note that the development of the leaf and fruit buds on twigs Nos. 3 and 4 is much in advance of that upon twigs Nos. 1 and 2.—From Bulletin New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station.)

grow out of it if properly treated. The tree must be pruned back quite heavily. The roots should then be mulched with preferably a straw stable manure. In the early spring the soil should be given a dressing with a complete fertilizer in which nitrogen predominates and should be well cultivated throughout the season. The tree should be sprayed with the lime and with bordeaux mixture to cleanse it from other pests and diseases.

The ravages of this affection have been extensive in the past few years. It claims whole orchards and at times saps the vitality of the orchards of a whole community. Again it will infect orchards of a community with a single or perhaps several exceptions. It is the orchard that is well situated, well pruned, well sprayed, well cultivated and well fertilized that escapes the ravages of this yellow plague. If they are well cared for trees are strong and healthy, and they do not easily fall the prey of the disease. Once the tree becomes affected the only sure and safe way is to pull the tree and burn it on the spot, being careful that no infected branch comes in contact with a healthy tree. This may seem like a heavy loss, but it will prove the most satisfactory way, as it may be the means of saving the rest of the orchard.—American Cultivator.

STRAIGHT TALK.

Progressive farming requires more planning than the ordinary farmer imagines. It does not pay to work without plans or strive without a purpose. Select a definite object, like the surveyor, and then go to it. The straight line is always the shortest distance between two points.

Fix Up the Grindstone.

"When a grindstone gets out of true, says the Prairie Farmer, 'a half inch rod of soft iron held to the stone like a turning chisel held to the stone is turned will true it up nicely. If this is not at hand, a spade with the handle against the ground and the edge like a turning tool will soon put the stone in good shape. If the stone becomes glazed over, nitric or sulphuric acid will cut the glazing down to the grit."

Advice About Onions.

Onions require a deep, mellow soil for best results. They should therefore be frequently cultivated and opportunity given for the bulblets to enlarge and mature onions of good quality. They must mature before the summer sun retards them; hence it is advisable to permit rapid growth.

The waste on many a big farm would buy a little farm and often causes the sale of the big one.

Avoiding Spread of Cocklebur.

One of the best ways to combat weed pests is to prevent their spread. If the horses get a number of burs in their tails or fetlocks pick them out at once. If the roots of the pea vine collect on the shovels of the cultivator pull them off before they are carried to other parts of the field.

Early Planting For Small Fruits.

Planting the currant may safely be done from Sept. 1 and the gooseberry from Oct. 1 to the freezing up of the ground, or in the spring as soon as the frost is out, until May 1 in most climates.

Witty Willis.

Nathaniel Parker Willis, the poet and author, was also a bit of a wit. Once at a dinner in Washington Willis and a young girl were talking with great animation. The young girl's aunt, seated beside a Mr. Campbell, passed down to her niece a note that said, "Stop flirting with Nat Willis." Willis on reading the note sent it back to the aunt again with this couplet scribbled on the reverse side: Dear aunt, don't attempt my young feelings to trammel Nor strain at a Nat while you swallow a Campbell.

CHOCKFUL OF FUN.

The Parson Didn't Look It, but He Fooled the Cowboy. Appearances sometimes are very deceitful, and to prove this trite proposition Chaucer M. Depew once related the following stirring anecdote: "A clerical friend of mine," said the senator, "told me a capital story of a Yale man who was stroke out for his crew and the chief athlete on the football field. He entered the ministry and spent several years in missionary labor in the far west. Walking one day through the frontier town, a cowboy stepped up to him and said: 'Parson, you don't have fun enough. Take a drink.' 'The minister declined.' 'Well,' the cowboy said, 'you must have some fun. Here's a fare layout. Take a hand in the game.' 'The minister declined.' 'Parson,' said the cowboy, 'you'll die if you don't have some fun,' and he thereupon knocked the parson's hat off his head and hit him a whack on the ear. 'The old athlete's spirit arose. The science which had been learned in the college gymnasium and forgotten for a quarter of a century was aroused, and a blow landed on the jaw of the cowboy that sent him sprawling in the street. The parson walked over him as if he had been a door rug, picked him up and dusted the side of the house with him, mopped up the sidewalk, and as the ambulance was carrying the cowboy off he raised his head feebly and said: 'Parson, what did you fool me for? You are chockful of fun.'—Washington Times.

Tarring Shell Roads.

An experiment is being made by Street Commissioner Cray of St. Augustine, Fla., with a tar binder on the shell paving on South St. George street. The results of the test proved to be entirely satisfactory, and it may solve the problem of making the shell pavement more lasting at slight expense. Six hundred square yards were treated at a cost of 4 1/2 cents a yard. The surface was first scarified and then graded to a crown. While the shell was in this loose condition gas tar was applied, and the street was then rolled with the steam roller. There is every indication that the street will now shed the water better in rains and that the gas tar will act as a binder, preventing the shell from grinding up and blowing away.

WHEN TO DRAG.

Begin in the spring when the frost has left the ground and the road begins to dry, but while yet muddy. Drag immediately after very prolonged rain throughout the season. Drag in the fall just before the ground freezes. Drag in the winter if the frost leaves the ground. It will freeze smooth. Do not drag a dry road.

SPRING OXFORDS

Riele's Millinery Opening

March 31st., and April 1st.

Invitation to view same extended to the general public.

D. J. RIELE, Chambersburg Street.

A level headed school superintendent whom we heard of the other day has decided that the girl members of his this year's graduating class may wear on the occasion of high school commencement only such dresses as they shall have made with their own hands. This is a mighty sensible idea and makes handicraft and ingenuity factors in the graduating gown rather than the length of the old gentleman's pocketbook. Then, too, it will help a number of these girls to realize that a whole lot of physical and nervous strain is involved in the making of fine duds.

The 1,400 pound Missouri mule is becoming a popular draft animal on the thoroughfares of New York city. He is tough, eats less than a horse of the same weight and if sound will sell for $300 or better.

It is estimated that the shippers of the country—and this includes pre-eminently the grain raiser, stock farmer and fruit grower—will be saved $27,000,000 yearly as a result of the recent decision of the interstate commerce commission, which is against an advance in freight rates by eastern and western railroads.
